

CRISIS in the Company

Friday, October 23, 2009
8:00am - 1:00pm

Civil & Criminal Defense in the Wake of Corporate Adversity

When your enterprise hits rough waters, management will turn to you for direction. No matter what the cause, you will need to be prepared to adjust your sails with a plan to protect the company against both criminal and civil liability.

Our moderators and speakers are uniquely qualified in helping clients through crises. Their collective experience includes counseling and representation in response to workplace catastrophes, allegations of widespread consumer fraud, class action threats and litigation, and multiple high-profile public financial restatements and government investigations.

Seminar Agenda:

Continental Breakfast & Registration (8:00 - 8:30 am)

Part I – Criminal Exposure: Navigating the Waters of Government Scrutiny

Multiple speakers will cover how to respond when corporate practices or actors attract heightened attention from law enforcement or government regulators. Topics will include when to commission an independent or internal investigation, responding to subpoenas and target letters, and strategies for effective cooperation with the authorities.

Part II – Civil Exposure: Defending Against Opportunistic Civil Claims

Multiple speakers will cover best practices for litigating typical cases that arise from high profile corporate challenges. Topics will include important steps for defeating class actions, defending shareholder claims, and managing and avoiding discovery dilemmas.

Panel Discussion & Lunch

Question & Answer session with seasoned crisis first-responders and litigators with an array of government investigation, white-collar criminal, class action, insurance and related expertise.
