New York	"NY Forward Reopening" Plan	5/15/2020	Phased reopening will begin on May 15, 2020 for phase one in certain geographical regions. There will be four phases of reopening, and the plan “prioritizes businesses considered to have a greater economic impact and inherently low risks of infection for the workers and customers, followed by other businesses considered to have less economic impact, and those that present a higher risk of infection spread.” Phase one includes construction; manufacturing; wholesale trade; select retail (for curbside pickup only); and agriculture, forestry, and fishing. Phase two includes professional services; finance and insurance; retail; administrative support; and real estate, rental, and leasing. Phase three includes restaurants and food services. Phase four includes arts, entertainment, and recreation; and education.	Yes - see Comments	Yes - see Comments	Yes - see Comments	Yes - see next column	Reopening will occur on a regional basis and the state is divided into ten geographical regions. The New York City region will likely be closed much longer than up-state regions based on the state’s criteria for re-opening. The state will monitor four core factors to determine if a region can re-open: (1) number of new infections; (2) health care capacity; (3) diagnostic testing capacity; and (4) contact tracing capacity. (See Guidelines for additional details.) A Regional Monitoring Dashboard monitors progress. “Each business and industry must have a plan to protect employees and consumers, make the physical work space safer and implement processes that lower risk of infection in the business.” As part of that plan, businesses “need to consider” protection for employees, “including requiring all employees and customers to wear masks if in frequent close contact with others and implementing strict cleaning and sanitation standards,” “possible adjustments to workplace hours and shift design as necessary to reduce density in the workplace; enacting social distancing protocols, and restricting non-essential travel for employees,” and “implementing processes that meet our changing public health obligations, like screening individuals when they enter the workplace, or reporting confirmed positives to customers.”	Industry-specific guidelines addressing requirements and recommendations for workplace safety
