

CPSC Recall Snapshot

A monthly review of consumer product recalls and civil penalties announced by the CPSC

December 2014

Welcome to the December edition of the Alston & Bird CPSC Recall Snapshot.

The saga surrounding high-powered magnetic products is far from over. Although Buckyballs, the most high-profile maker of high-powered magnetic products, agreed to recall their product earlier this year and is no longer in business, another manufacturer, Zen Magnets, has continued to fight. The trial on the CPSC's proposed mandatory recall of Zen's magnets started on December 1 before an administrative law judge. We will report on the results of the trial in the next Snapshot.

In addition to the trial, Zen has launched an aggressive social media campaign challenging both the proposed recall and the CPSC's recent ban of certain high-powered small magnet sets. See Zen's YouTube video, "The (CPSC) Epidemiology Elephant in the Room," here.

We hope you find the Snapshot of last month's recalls a useful tool in keeping up to date on the activities of the CPSC. We also invite you to check out our Products Liability Blog, which features important updates on CPSC and products liability issues.

Alston & Bird helps companies navigate the CPSC's complex regulations—from testing, to labeling, to recalls—and everything in between. We also help companies monitor and respond to complaints submitted to the CPSC's new consumer complaint database, www.SaferProducts.gov. For additional information or questions about recalls, the SaferProducts.gov database or other CPSC issues, please email jenifer.keenan@alston.com or visit the firm's website at www.alston.com.
