Harrison Lawrence is a patent agent with substantial experience within the manufacturing and mechanical engineering realm. Before joining the firm, Harrison gained experience at various manufacturing facilities where he analyzed manufacturing processes. During his time at Precision Engineering, Harrison worked hands-on in a lab performing soil maximum strength tests. As a student, he completed Nissan's YK-04 training program and studied at Advanced Distributor Products where he completed future mapping of the assembly plant.

During his time at the University of Mississippi, Harrison was a member of the Center of Manufacturing Excellence and graduated, cum laude, with a degree in mechanical engineering; he also minored in mathematics and manufacturing.
